

CPDWL

Continuing
Professional Development and Workplace Learning

Internationalizing your career

Get the international into your career: hear about strategies for developing cross-cultural competencies and multi-cultural awareness.

Jump starting your career

Learn how to maximize your investment in your personal development. 10 essential education and career resources to help you strategize powerful moves. Join our discussion of a practical shortlist of resources to help you start making connections to continue moving forward.

Workshop

IFLA WLIC, Singapore 2013
Wednesday Aug 21, 11.45-13.45

Alternative careers

Librarians possess many transferrable skills that can be used outside of a traditional library. How do you identify them? What types of jobs are possible? How does one find and obtain these jobs?

Professional ethics

At the library workplace we are often challenged by ethical dilemmas. Main issues are free access to information/ censorship, privacy, equitable services for everyone... How do you become aware that you are facing a dilemma? How do you treat ethical conflicts? How can professional ethics help you to solve an ethical conflict?

Taking Charge of your Career

<http://www.ifla.org/cpdwl>

Taking charge of your career

Intercultural competencies for the international floor

How do you behave and react with international counterparts? Intercultural competence doesn't mean to resolve differences but to use them. We will discuss different behaviours, gestures etc.

What to do to be published, whom to contact

Publishing can take many forms – i.e. blogging, writing book reviews or conference reports, and presenting conference papers. This table will showcase some IFLA options which increase the reach of your work.

Gap analysis (Self managed career)

As the self-managed career is replacing the traditional career, librarians need to take control of their own destinies. Learn tips and techniques for planning the career you want.

Personal skills and competencies

Personal skills are the foundation in leadership as well as in employeeship, where you lead yourself in your daily work. In order to understand other people, you need to understand yourself and your actions.

How to prepare your papers to be published

Learn strategies for getting your interesting results and important best practices published. How do you identify the right publication, write for your audience, and present your content for publication?

How to connect: using social media

Are you looking at strategies to use social media to continue your professional development or how to manage your own social media profile to enhance your career. We'll discuss using different social media to network with others in our profession or with our client.